

Tam'si is a research engineer at QuantFi and contributes to the development of the learning and software branches. His background is mostly mathematics and computer science, with a Master degree from Telecom SudParis.

He is currently pursuing a PhD in computer science at Strasbourg University, the broad topic of his thesis is to leverage artificial evolution to optimize various quantum algorithms.

Always curious and proactive, he likes to bring up new research topics in the company.